Dear Jim,

About the Beer Broadsides — I'm afraid Malcolm was as wrong there as in some other departments. I don't have and never have had any of them. You would be welcome to some had I any. At any rate, though I'm sorry for your lack of success, I'm delighted to hear from you again — and so is Gloria. When was the last time I saw you? in Chapel Hill, wasn't it?

Both of us are sincerely distressed at your news about Malcolm, even if some of the details are not exactly unexpected. Both of us have continued to be concerned about his fate, even if our sources of information have been relatively non-existant. Since Dot's illness & the Faulkner's exodus from Oxford no one has had Mark up, and we have heard nothing. My own part in Malcolm's unhappy decline, however much or little it may have contributed to it, will always be a painful memory for me. I hope that your estimate about his future is rather less hopeful than events will bear out. If you do get any news of him from time to time we would appreciate hearing it.

Please let us know if you are going to come to New Orleans. We would be delighted to have you stay with us, if the business men don't provide more exciting quarters. Certainly we would at least hope to see you for a meal or drinks or both. (We can take care of you, or of two of you if Dutch should be coming. We bought a house last year.)

Let me hear from you. Gloria sends her regards.

Yours,

Lamarr
